THE LEVOY THEATRE

MILLVILLE
NEW JERSEY

Discover the beautiful Levoy Theatre!

As you walk through the lobby, we welcome you to discover the new Levoy. Discover something special, live performances, real talent, in person, right before your eyes. We want you to see it, hear, feel it and experience it personally. The expression of talent uplifts us all. We derive much of our inspiration from our patrons who have faithfully worked with us to find our way and discover just how valuable a theater can be to a community.

Diversity and variety are our hallmarks. From comedy to Broadway and from magic to rock, we offer it all. If it is activity you are looking for, look no further. Our summer camp caters to youth from ages 6 to 17, our inaugural season of Continuing Arts Education courses are available to all ages and our theatre boasts the best and most active Ambassadors of any nonprofit around. This year's Broadway Season of "Discovery" includes productions of "Into the Woods," "Driving Miss Daisy," "Mamma Mia," and "Mary Poppins" featuring our improved sound and lighting capabilities.

In this world of computers and digital overload we offer an oasis, a place where reality is suspended and where a personal experience unlike any other fills our minds and inspires our children. The Levoy is the antidote to a world gone awry. In some ways, the greatest gift we can give to this and the next generation is an opportunity to personally discover, experience or express talent.

More than 650 entertaining and affordable public performances have graced our stage since we opened in 2012. We thank you for discovering us and helping to make this incredible feat possible. As we celebrate our 6th anniversary we welcome you and invite you to join the Levoy team as a member, volunteer or patron. Together, we will ensure that the next generation discovers live performances of world class talent right here at the beautiful Levoy Theatre.

Enjoy the show,

THE STORY OF THE LEVOY

The story of the Levoy is the story of the people who built it, owned it, worked in it and patronized it. It is a story filled with triumph and defeat, happiness and sadness. It is exactly the story you might expect from any historic icon that's commanded Millville's High Street for over a century.

On January 9, 1908, The Levoy Theatre opened. It was much smaller than today's structure; there were two floors – the theatre on the lower level and a dance hall on the upper.

Only four years after the first Levoy opened it was doubled in size. With a larger stage and wrap-around balcony, reopening ceremonies began on November 4, 1912 with William Somers' renaming the theatre "The New Levoy." During the teens and '20s, the theatre was a grand structure seen as "second to none in South Jersey" and had a successful run as a Vaudeville house.

Through the 1930's and 40's, the Levoy was taken over by Warner Brothers and it became home to movie-goers with the rise of "the talkies" and through the golden age of motion pictures.

In the 1950's the theatre began its decline when television became a readily available source of entertainment in homes. Over the next twenty-five years, the theatre encountered new owners and underwent a few more attempts at renovations until 1976, when the theatre was closed in order to make a few minimum safety repairs.

The theatre never reopened and remained vacant for several years before a bright young man, Joey Pierce Jr., became involved. Joey championed preserving and using older, historic structures. Through Joey's efforts, The Levoy was purchased from a subsequent owner and designated as a structure of historic value by the State of New Jersey.

Joey Pierce Jr. worked tirelessly to preserve the building for future generations and established an organization to shepherd the project into the next century. Sadly, Joey passed away at a young age and his dream was all but lost. A grass roots effort to pick up where Joey left off was initiated. With the help of many volunteers and supporters, a new plan was developed to open the Levoy once again. A historical placard and photograph of Joey Pierce Jr. graces the mezzanine of the theatre. It serves as a reminder to everyone who enters the Levoy of the power of one man who can positively inspire so many.

Restoration was not an option due to the physical decline of the building, so a full renovation was completed in the summer of 2012. The Levoy Theatre you see today is reminiscent of the grand style of the 1920's with all of the modern amenities of a first-class contemporary performing arts center.

For a complete history of the Levoy, please visit our website www.levoy.net.
